2 KILLED IN SANTA BARBARA EARTHQUAKE

FIFTEEN DROWNED AS CUNARDER HITS SMALL FISHING BOAT

Company Head Says Men Were Caught Below Decks

MASTER IS PICKED UP AFTER WRECK

Fog Is Thought To Be Responsible For The Shipping Crash

(Associated Press)
GLOUCESTER, Mass., June 29.—Fifteen men were drowned and nine others of the crew of the schooner Rex of this port rescued when the boat was sunk in a collision with the Tuscania, a Cunarder, 200 miles east of Halifax yesterday.

Beyond the meagre message received by the ships owners by the anchor line reporting the disaster, no word has come to amplify details.

Officials of the Davis company, owner of the Rex, believe the ships crew was caught below decks and drowned like rats.

The Tuscania which struck the fishing craft during a fog stood by to search for possible survivors. Thomas Downey of Lowell, master of the sunken vessel, was picked-up dead.

The Tuscania cleared Liverpool for New York June 28 and was due to dock here today. The Rex sailed June 28 and was returning laden with halibut at the time of the accident.

Land Company and the Episcopal Church Pay Heaviest

A check in the sum of $12,788 was sent to the Hanover National Bank of New York city, Saturday afternoon by the city of Albany as payment of interest on street paving and improvement bonds, according to city officials today. The Decatur Land Improvement and Furnace company and the Episcopal church paid the heaviest figures. The former cleared an indebtedness with the city of $12,425.38, while the latter paid in the sum of $1,319.45.

City officials today felt considerably at ease following the Saturday action and believed that there is indication that the city is beginning to see light out of financial obligations that have been incurred as the city progressed at a rapid stride in improvements and street paving.

A great many delinquents have not as yet paid their assessments city clerk Hartung pointed out today. Mr. Hartung said that he believed the people of this city would gladly respond to the call of the city if they will but realize that the municipality can go forward with a progressive program when its obligations are met.

BOOTH TO QUIT HIS LAND OFFICE POST

Says He Will Go To Florida and "Grow With Country"

(Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 29.—Vistas of the early days of Alabama were revealed here by Joseph W. Booth (Uncle Joe) who has been chief clerk in the United States Land office in the city for the past 44 years when he made a few statements following an announcement that he will retire from the governmental service on July 18.

"Uncle Joe" said that when he first took up his work in the land office, Alabama had millions of acres of public lands, and that he had seen these acres dwindle in number as settlers came in until now there are only about 100,000 acres left. "Uncle Joe" pointed out that only in the past few weeks more than 1,000 acres of land have been taken up along the Gulf Coast.

Administrations rose and fell while "Uncle Joe" kept the land office records, but untouched by the passing of the political powers of other days, he kept plugging and now he has gone into his 44th year of service.

Several times it was proposed to retire "Uncle Joe" it is understood, but at the urgent requests of the registrars, he was left in power, his time extended. This happened about four years ago, when the veteran passed the governmental retirement age.

When questioned as to his plans on leaving the office, "Uncle Joe" proved that his quick wit, for which he is somewhat noted, has not become dulled with his long work on state records, for with a twinkle of his eye, he said that he was considering "going to Florida and growing up with the country."

The department of the interior heads stated in a letter to "Uncle Joe" that his period of service was more than enough to entitle him to the maximum annuity, and appreciation of his long and faithful service was spoken.

MANUFACTURE NEW INVENTION IS TO BE STARTED HERE SOON

Local Men Will Go Into Location On Moulton St.

MACHINERY NOW ON THE WAY HERE

Simrell Says Rumor Of Business Sale Is Unfounded

Albany-Decatur is soon to have a new factory, a factory built by local men, owned by local men and run by local men. D. L. Simrell and E. G. Young expect to open their own factory within the next thirty days on Moulton street for the manufacture of a type of piston rings perfected by themselves. Mr. Simrell stated today that rumors regarding the sale of his present business on Church street, Decatur, were unfounded.

Speaking of the opening of the new plant, Mr. Simrell declared today that machinery valued at several thousand dollars was now on the way and was expected to arrive within the week. He said that the capacity of the plant is to be between six thousand and seven thousand rings per day. From the information given, the new type of ring is self-adjusting and will eliminate spark plug troubles and the pumping of oil into the cylinder head. The product will be known as an oil-proof and compression ring.

The new business should be in running order in the next thirty days and marks the second invention locally within the past few weeks that has engaged the eyes of the local public as well as the rest of the country. William E. Orr, official court stenographer, is placing an invention of his own on the market and expects to start a university, teaching the use and the value of his product, around August this year.

Mr. Simrell indicated that there would be no sparing effort in placing the new compression ring before the various manufacturing houses of the country and that the firm expected to reach every distributor possible when the manufacturing of the product is begun at Albany-Decatur.

DOWLING BELIEVES COL. JOHN COOLIDGE DEPT. IS WRONG REPORTED IMPROVED

Says Statistics Were Compiled During Past Year

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 29.—Exception to the report sent out by the Department of Agriculture at Washington has been taken by Dr. Dowling says that the statistics on which the report was based gathered nearly a year ago, shortly before a new meat inspection ordinance was put in force by the city and that the conditions were prevalent at that time have been corrected to a large degree. He claims that the enforcement of this new ordinance has improved conditions materially and that a new survey of the city would give Birmingham a much higher rating than that set out in the department's statement recently published.

"Since the survey of the United States department of agriculture was made, it is felt that considerable improvement has been made in the retail marketing situation in this city," Dr. Dowling's statement runs. "The department of health has concerned itself chiefly in this respect during the past year with the enforcement of the law requiring screening of premises and the refrigeration of meats in display cases or ice boxes between service. Complaints registered by citizens against spoiled meat have decreased over 90 per cent as a result of its inspection forces prohibiting, as far as possible, and as adequately as its facilities go, the wide open display in windows and on counters where it is exposed to dust and high temperatures, and frequently flies."

"It would be a grave injustice to the majority of the better class retail meat markets in this city to let the impression go abroad that Birmingham is behind in sanitation as compared with the majority of cities. Whatever the situation was a year ago, the department of health is in a position to state that Birmingham now has a large number of meat markets that will compare favorably with any in this country."

QUAKES CONTINUE TO ROCK WESTERN UNITED STATES

Buildings Sway at Los Angeles With No Damage Done

SANTA BARBARA IS CUT OFF BY WIRE

Great Falls Has The Fourth Shock In The Past 32 Hours

(Associated Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—Latest report of number dead in earthquake at Santa Barbara brought list to twelve.

SANTA BARBARA, June 29.—

Four persons are known to have been killed and from 100 to 300 have been injured in the earthquake which swept this city at 4:30 this morning.

The San Marcus building, largest business structure, completely collapsed as well as the Arlington and St. Francis hotels. One of the dead is Mrs. Perkins, wife of a wealthy railroad man.

Other three people were found in the wreckage on state street. They had not been identified.

SANTA MARIA, Cal., June 29.—

Seven persons were killed in the destruction of the Hotel Barbara at Santa Barbara by an earthquake this morning according to advices received here today.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—Santa Barbara, the picturesque little city perched high above the ocean in southern California, suffered disaster, the extent of which had not been determined late this morning in a quake which was general over California early today, but apparently struck lightly in other towns.

Communication with Santa Barbara was cut off immediately after the shock but meager reports within the next two hours said that most of the buildings on state street had been destroyed, one of them the famous Arlington Hotel. There was no mention of loss of life or injuries. There were other hotels reported destroyed, one a big beach hotel.

Eye witnesses returning from Bonanza reported that Santa Barbara water mains had burst, no fires were reported.

While the quakes were felt strongly in Los Angeles, Hollywood and surrounding towns in slow heavy tremors, no damage was reported.

Santa Barbara usually crowded in the winter season is not thought to have had a very large influx of visitors, yet it is thought that there were a number of tourists there. The population is about 20,000.

Accompanying the quake were tremendous waves which rushed in from the bay and flooded low lands.

The Associated Oil company with private lines to Santa Maria have a report that "many large buildings in Santa Barbara have been destroyed."

Late advices say that Gibraltar Dam, part of Santa Barbara's water system, broke and emptied.

The Cabrillo Hotel, according to reports, split in two and collapsed. The earthquake was felt in the Imperial

They Say It's Hot; Weather Man Is Of The Same Opinion

"Gee, I wish it would rain," is not the contention alone of the agriculturist. Prespiring citizens of these cities are sending the same plea heavenward. Everybody says that it is hot and the weather man bears out that belief.

Mrs. A. H. Irons, government observer, declared today near noon, that the thermometer reading today showed this to be the hottest day of the year. The mercury rose to 100 degrees and remained long enough to establish a record for the present season.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Ellen and Joe Latimer, a woman, without success, make their home with their Aunt Ellen, at Port Washington, small New York town. Ellen is studying art, her expenses being paid by Mrs. Josselyn, her friend of her mother. Mrs. Josselyn invites Ellen to a Thanksgiving house party, and the girl is delighted.

CHAPTER II.—On the way from the station to Mrs. Josselyn's home, Ellen meets a remarkably attractive young woman and a much older man. She takes them for father and daughter, but they are introduced as Mr. and Mrs. Josselyn. Ellen does not "fit in" with the younger members of the party, and is miserable.

CHAPTER III.—Leaving for her home next morning, Ellen meets Gibbs Josselyn, son of her fellow guest. He has disapproved of his father's wedding and is not on speaking terms with his father. Declining to stay at Mrs. Josselyn's, Gibbs drives Ellen to the station. They miss the train and Gibbs undertakes to drive the girl to Port Washington. On the way they are wrecked. Ellen is hurt, but it is not thought to be serious, and she and Gibbs part. She has been attracted by the girl, and she by him.

CHAPTER IV.—Ellen's injury proves to be severe, and for months she is an invalid. Recovered, she is taking part in the town's Memorial day festivities when Gibbs Josselyn, on a yachting trip with a friend, George Lathrop, meets her again. The feeling of mutual attraction has strengthened since they parted. They leave Port Washington man and wife.

CHAPTER V.—Nearly seven years later Gibbs and Ellen Josselyn, with their son, come back from France to New York. They are welcomed by Josselyn, Senior, and his beautiful wife, Lillian, the old invalid forgotten.

CHAPTER VI.—Gibbs and Ellen make their home with the elder Josselyns, at Wheatley Hills, just outside New York. Gibbs (idea, ostensibly looking for studio in which to resume his portrait painting, and Ellen is vaguely disturbed. She begins to perceive that her husband is attracted by his youthful stepmother's beauty. Joe Latimer, Gibbs' brother-in-law, is tentatively engaged to marry Harriet, George Lathrop's daughter.

CHAPTER VII.—Gibbs secures a studio, taking Lillian with him when he engages it, and the rift between the younger Josselyns widens. Gibbs' intention for his stepmother becoming plainer. On Lillian's part it is more a situation than anything serious. Joe confides to Ellen that he has wronged a girl at Port Washington and feels he should marry her, giving up Harriet Lathrop, whom he believes he loves.

CHAPTER VIII.—On a visit to New York, Gibbs and Lillian find themselves unable to return to Wheatley Hills that night. Heavy snow having made the roads impassable. Telephoning, Josselyn, Senior, finds that Lillian is not with the friends she is consulting, and goes to find her. He finds her in a rooming house, and she tells him that she and Gibbs are together. Next morning Ellen and Josselyn, Senior, motor to the city and find the pair, as Ellen had foretold, at the studio.

blame you, Lillian!" he said gently, after a silence.

"But smile at me, Gibbs," she said, with an uneasy laugh and a rather uncertain resumption of her old confident manner. "Or I'll have to come over there and make you smile!"

Before he could speak again the door was opened by her husband.

She knew that in the moment he had realized her deception about Lindsay Pepper she had come close to losing Gibbs. She felt a contempt for the weakness in herself that had permitted her to risk the love of the man she really desired for the old admirer who had lost, by contrast with the new, any power to stir her. But Lillian could not think that Gibbs would not return to her. He was hurt, he was sore and angry now, but she had still, as a weapon, their dangerous propinquity and she saw still the disturbing and appealing beauty he had found irresistible.

So Lillian played her game safely, and hid her time. This storm would blow over, as other storms had. She would need only a little patience, she would need caution. Patience and watchfulness were among Lillian's virtues.

But Gibbs knew that it was all over. He had made a fool of himself, for her, he had told himself that it was only a pretty and exciting game. He had lived in the light of those dark and magnificent eyes, he had thrilled to the touch of her smooth, warm hand.

That he had never actually been false to Ellen was of small comfort to him now. The house of cards had fallen about him through no heroic measure of his own. He had placed himself in an undignified, in a ridiculous position, he had let her deceive him with the rest.

And with the revelation that she had, from sheer good-natured laziness, placed herself under Lindsay Pepper's roof for the night, and with the bitter thought that Lindsay's coarse devotion meant quite as much to her as his insatiable appetite for admiration as did his own exquisitely expressed friendship, Gibbs' awakening had come.

He could not bear to look at her now, to speak to her. He fell into a mood of angry silence; his father's attitude of watchfulness, Ellen's voiceless question and reproach, and Lillian's tireless efforts to re-establish the old order of things, alike infuriated him.

CHAPTER X

As Ellen came in with an armful of roses, the big clock in the hall began to chime in a leisurely manner, and, glancing at it, she saw that it was twelve o'clock. Long afterward Ellen Josselyn thought of that moment, and of the events that would stamp themselves on her heart and brain before the clock chimed for another noonday. But at the time she only reflected that luncheon was in half an hour, and she was muddy and disheveled; she would put the roses in the study, and fly upstairs to brush and change. Very often she carried flowers into the study; the maids were not allowed to enter the room, and the old man liked to find traces of his daughter-in-law's affection waiting there.

Only Lizzie was in the study. She was standing, pale and staring, by the table, facing the door. She gave a little cry, helpless and forlorn, as Ellen came in. Ellen's eyes flashed to her limp fingers, which lay about the beautiful shining body of a revolver on the table.

Before the little cry, half-protest and half-whine, had died away, Ellen had sprung at her, wrenched the terrible thing free, and flung it back into the table.

"Lizzie—My Child!" Ellen said in a Sharp Whisper. "What Are You Doing? What Were You Going to Do?"

Its place in the drawer, pushed her own body against the drawer to close it, and caught Lizzie by the shoulders, forcing the girl to face her. While they stood there, panting, the shadow of death lifted itself slowly from the room. The fire crackled, the sunlight, pouring through green bottle-ends, fell peacefully upon the soft tones of rugs and leather chairs.

"Lizzie—my child!" Ellen said, in a sharp whisper. "What were you doing? What were you going to do?"

No need to answer. Lizzie attempted none. She hung her head; her breath came on childish dry sobs.

Ellen's thoughts raced. There was only one explanation of this: Lizzie was "in trouble." Ellen had noticed tear-stains about the pretty eyes more than once. She remembered now that Lizzie's mother, a village woman, had come all the way to Wheatley Hills one day, in a plumber's delivery van, to hold a mysterious but violent conversation with the girl, who had cried bitterly. Afterward, she had explained to Ellen that she wanted her to get married, and Ellen had wisely observed that she was right not to take that step until she felt ready for it.

So that was it. This gentle, conscientious little woman had been carrying that burden in her heart.

Ellen made the girl sit down on the great seat by the fire, and sat down herself beside her. She kept one kindly hand on Lizzie's shoulder, and fixed anxious eyes upon the tear-wet, averted face. The older woman still felt herself to be frightened and shaken, but her tone was as quiet as she could make it.

"Lizzie—my dear! That was a wicked thing to do. Can't you tell me about it? You know Tommy loves you, and I love you. Tell me—"

The tone entirely melted poor Lizzie, whose breast began to heave painfully. Ellen thrust her handkerchief into the girl's hand, and Lizzie sobbed unheeded, wrenching her whole body into her grief, and making stifled sounds like a person strangling.

"It's about that man your mother wanted you to marry?" Ellen suggested, after awhile, her arm still about Lizzie's shoulders. The girl nodded without looking up. "And Lizzie, should you marry him?" Ellen ventured.

"I love him!" Lizzie answered, in a choked and angry voice, after a shamed pause.

"You love him—You poor child! And he wants to marry you?"

"He says he will," Lizzie had writhed about so that her back was almost turned to Ellen, who had to bend forward to catch a glimpse of the flushed face and inflamed eyes.

"And don't you think you would be happier," Ellen pursued sweetly, "don't you think you would be happier, if he loves you, and you—"

"He don't love me," Lizzie interrupted sullenly.

"But you said—"

"I said he'd marry me!"

The blood came to Ellen's face, and she sat back, feeling a little sick. She had read of the old tragedy a thousand times, but how much more poignant was this first encounter with it, this sickening realization of what it means to the woman to sue! She had loved, and she had given, and now it was his royal prerogative to lift her up, and make her "honest," or to drive her to self-murder. Ah, life was hard enough for the Ellens, who keep a man's respect, but lose his love. But for the Lizzies—!

"Lizzie," she asked timidly. "Are you—you're not?"

Lizzie had dried her swollen eyes, and their misery was turned toward Ellen.

"No, ma'am," she answered, with returning self-control, "if there was a baby coming, I'd marry him tomorrow. But he—he's a good man, Mrs. Josselyn, and he'd never be anything but shamed and kept down by a girl like me. And we done what we done like children might do something wrong."

poor Lizzie added, with her eyes brimming again, "and all the time he was in love with another lady—I knew he was, but he didn't know himself how he had come to think about her—and so when we—when we said we wouldn't see each other no more, I thought that it was all over and done with—except for the way I felt. But—but ma guessed it, and she was awful mean to me," the girl said simply, "and nothing ever seemed right again. I didn't want to go with any of the other boys, and I kept feeling what if I should marry some day, and have a little girl—"

She began to cry again softly. Ellen, whose face had grown ashen, sat staring at her blindly. Her heart was pounding; her brain in a whirl. She had heard those terms before—Lizzie had been Aunt Elsie's maid through an illness last winter—

"When was this, Lizzie?" she asked, clearing her throat.

"Last winter, Mrs. Josselyn."

"Look at me," Ellen said, after a pause. "Look at me, Lizzie. Was it Joe? Was it Mr. Latimer?"

She saw the answer in Lizzie's eyes before the girl said quickly:

"No, ma'am! Oh, no, ma'am!"

Ellen could smile sadly as she shook her head.

"He told me about it, Lizzie. He told me all about it, but he didn't say it was you. I'm so sorry. I'm so desperately sorry. You—you do love him?"

"Oh, my G-d, how could I help it?" the girl answered, with sudden violence. "I had never worked before, Mrs. Josselyn, and at home it was trouble—trouble—trouble! My father drinks and my sister's husband drinks—I've seen him hit her a few days before her children come! And your aunt was so good to me; and the captain treated me like I was his grand-daughter, and everything was so pleasant and warm. And Joe always anxious for me to get enough to eat, and helping me with kindling and all, and one night tying up my finger where I'd cut it, and sometimes he'd kiss me, you know, and tell me I looked nice! And then one night he wasn't coming home, and the captain wanted some tobacco, and I run up street for it, after supper, and when I come back my feet were all soppy, and after I'd undressed, I come down in a wrapper, to get warm—"

Ellen could see the old Main street house. Her eyes were shining.

New York Letter

By Lucy Jeanné Price

NEW YORK, June 29.—Large women get the systematic attention, I maintain that small ones manage to attract. Every inch added to a woman's height means that much less solicitation for her protection. It seems too bad Miss Bella Weiner, for instance, eighteen years old but a bit over six feet tall, was awarded only six cents by a jury for a stolen kiss while others of her sex have been able to collect many dollars for such an outrage. It was the extra inches that did it, emphasized by the fact that the man who took the unexpected kiss and who was also her employer, is only five feet tall. The employer denied the kiss completely but the six cents proved the jury didn't accept his word at face value. Therefore the thirteen inches of difference, to the advantage of the lady, was the only explanation for the unsympathetic jury. The fact that Miss Weiner told them that when he kissed her, she immediately called her mother, may have inclined the jurymen to believe he had already been sufficiently reprovved for his excessive gallantry.

I maintain that some sort of medalion should go to the proprietor of a certain Broadway jewelry store. His course of protection against robbers may be perfectly sound and undoubtedly sound and undoubtedly is but it takes nerve just the same, I insist. There have been so many holdups lately, even in the busy daytime that he determined upon something other than the ordinary burglar alarm. So he has button on the floor which automatically locks all the doors when it is stepped on and another button behind the counter will do the same thing. If robbers enter his store, they are going to have a hard time getting out again until the police are ready to receive them. "Wouldn't you only increase your own danger?" his friends ask him. "No, if they have any brains and they seem to have, there will see they are trapped. They aren't going to shoot and attract a mob when there is no way for them to escape." It sounds wholly reasonable but just the same I don't want to be locked up with hold-up men. They could escape as easily as possible if it would take them away from my presence, I am sure.

The most democratic place in this city is the public animal hospital. Drop in any morning at ten o'clock and you find Park avenue in close conference with Second avenue over what would seem to be the trouble with either a handsome and aloof Chow or a worried and sociable pup that seems closer to being a fox terrier than anything else. Diets are discussed and dispositions and the accumulated wisdom of every woman present is at the use of every other woman. It looks as if an ownership in a pet dog will do more to make the whole world kin than any other particular phase of nature.

Valley on the southern boundary of the state. Apparently it extended no further north than Bakers Field. It did not reach San Francisco. Many wealthy people are said to have been in Santa Barbara, despite the fact that it was a summer season.

LOS ANGELES, June 29.—A severe earthquake shock rocked the city at 6:43 o'clock this morning. Downtown buildings swayed considerably, but the movement was slow and even and there were no indications of damage although the motion continued for more than a minute.

The tremors were felt as far north as New Hall, some 31 miles from here according to telephone company reports.

Western Union and Pacific telephone and telegraph wires west of Ventura, in the direction of Santa Barbara, went dead and an hour later the companies reported that they were not able to establish connections.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—An earthquake at 6:44 a. m. today caused the southern Pacific round house at Santa Barbara to cave in, demolish Coleta station nine miles north of Santa Barbara and thrust the railroad station nine miles north of Santa Barbara and thrust the railroad tracks out of line at Maples, the Southern Pacific lines were informed just before lines of communication were destroyed.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 29.—Great Falls was visited with its fourth earthquake in 32 hours at 2:30 this morning.

HELENA, Mont., June 29.—Helena people were awakened this morning at 2:30 o'clock by an earth shock that lasted seven seconds. No reports have been received of the damage.

Residents of Gallatin Valley the apparent center of the earthquake, that shook four states Saturday and yesterday, fastidiously remained out in the great open spaces looking back at the ruins of more than 20 houses.

It was a whimsical earthquake. No one was killed. There were half a dozen landslides. A crevice some ten miles long remains as an evidence of the quake. The Lombard tunnel of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway was caved in. Railroad officials announced last night that a force of 2,000 laborers were put to work clearing the tracks and the tunnels.

Three trains that were hemmed in Saturday night were released today.

12 Years Ago From The Daily of TODAY

June 29, 1913

There was issue of The Daily of that date June 29 falling on Sunday.

Cities that are built on a foundation of air must move as the wind changes. A lack of ballast shows a promotion scheme in its true light.

Farming conditions in the valley at the present time indicate the most valuable harvest of many years. The farmer and his products are always most welcome in Albany-Decatur.

We hope that the people of this county will cast their ballot in favor of a continuance of the one mill school tax on July 11. Voting for the continuance of the tax does not mean an increase in taxation, it means a greater security for your boy and your daughter that they might have a better advantage to meet life than you had. Vote July 11—it is a duty to your home.

A GOOD ROADS VIEWPOINT

A city is as good as its streets, is a popular belief that has been adopted by the city councils of Albany and Decatur. These cities have carried forward in the past few years one of the most extensive street paving programs, with the exception of Second avenue, that has been "seen through" in any Alabama city and the thought that the paving is completed brings this decision.

If the cities and towns of the state benefit to such a great extent with their road building programs, then why should not the country and the rural sections be progressed just as far with the adoption of a similar program? We arrive at this conclusion through watching the local situation. There are streets in Albany and Decatur that before the advent of paved streets were undesirable sections, property values were unknown, small rents, untidy appearances and in many cases unsanitary home conditions prevailed. Do you see such a condition at this time? Of course you do not. Where the paved street has replaced the dirt and chuck hole avenue we now find new residences, well kept lawns, fresh paint, trimmed trees, the general atmosphere of the district through which the macadamized thoroughfare takes its course is one of happiness. The people themselves are improved—it is natural with the change in environment. This has been true of the cities in which paved streets have become as common as furrows in the agricultural districts. Why then would it not pay the farmer to have a system of good roads at his command?

Build a highway and you soon find prosperous farmers residing there. People are people wherever you find them—the farmer will respond to the change in his environment just as quickly as the man who lives in the more densely populated area. It is true of every section of the nation and yet we have a great many who will oppose expenditures for good roads. We cannot see why they will take such a stand unless it is fear of the extra taxation which after all is small when distributed to the individual. A city without paved streets is poorly provided for competition with other cities. A farm that has not the convenience of a well paved highway is practically cut off from a market in which to sell the products that provide a livelihood.

THE CHINESE SITUATION

The Chinese situation of today offers a striking bit of truth to the old saying credited to Napoleon Bonaparte when he was asked of his intentions regarding the conquering of the yellow empire. Bonaparte's famous answer to the effect that China was a sleeping lion and that it was to the best interests of the remainder of the world that China be left alone.

Today we find that China is being stirred. Just how far this boiling over process is going to reach can only be told as the future is unfolded. America and other nations of the globe hope that there will be no further uprisings for a continuance of the Chinese outbreaks can mean but one thing, war with the rest of the world. A nation must protect the international right of citizenship in other countries.

Where the trouble is coming from in the Mongolian countries can be located in Russia. When the first outbreaks occurred there was the lone thought in the minds of people of America that the trouble would soon come to an end. A few students rioting about something that we knew nothing of. That was the thought of the American mind, but today the Chinese trouble has not been settled. The youthful intelligentsia of that nation has not been stopped, the rioting continues with citizens of every nation on earth being added to each day's death toll.

For once we find that Japan is a friend in need. The cry of the yellow peril that was so popular several years ago is now dead. Japan is seen in the light of a benefactor or rather a buffer between the forces of the yellow hordes and the civilized world. Japan can handle the situation if the remainder of the civilized nation will keep their hands off with the exception of protecting their own citizens.

to be able to wage a full-fledged war until such a time as the remainder of the world recognizes that government as stable and a good financial risk. It takes money to fight wars and China has not the money. No matter how many men she might be able to place in the field, she would have her hands tied unless they were well equipped and trained.

The civilized world can best adopt a policy of isolation so far as the Chinese situation is concerned. It is too much like playing with fire. China does not know her real strength but when she learns the other peoples of the earth are going to pay for the years that China has been considered a nonentity in international affairs.

HUNTSVILLE STILL WANTS HER TRAMS

Huntsville is still yelling for her trams. Huntsville does not want the Power company to remove the electric lines in the city for fear that some classes will be without accommodation for transportation. Huntsville believes that they should be given full consideration and that the corporation should carry on whether at a loss of money or receiving dividends.

But the Florence News fails to see the matter in that light. The News editor believes that the Huntsville people are "Crying for the Moon." Incidentally the News writer has a chance to refer to Huntsville as a small town in his interesting article that follows:

"Huntsville is worried over the fact that the city is in danger of losing its car lines. The Alabama Power company—present owner of this utility—contends that the lines are losing money and is asking to be relieved of its franchise. The citizens generally are up in arms to protest this loss of civic dignity.

"It looks to us like fighting wind mills. Discontinuance of car lines in smaller cities is a part of the inevitable. No institution will be operated indefinitely at a loss and street cars in small towns are not receiving enough patronage to make them pay. This is no reflection on 'The Hub of the Muscle Shoals District' either. The trouble is universal, and even the Tri-Cities have no assurance that the same fate does not await them.

"But why worry? The loss of car lines in this day and age isn't a knock-out by any means. It may pinch a little on civic pride but is certainly no economic disaster. Most of the folks get their rapid transit by auto now—days anyway. Private conveyances have made great inroads on street car traffic and the jitney is taking the rest. Elimination of car lines doesn't mean that people will have to walk.

"The trouble with Huntsville is that it hasn't its psychology on straight. It isn't the loss of car lines but the prick in civic pride that is causing the commotion. The feeling that the town will suffer in prestige is at the bottom of the protest. But as a matter of fact—and for advertising purposes—it will be quite as much distinction to be probably the first city of twenty-five thousand to discard an obsolete mode of transportation as to be one of a thousand such communities to cling thereto. Why not capitalize the fact that you have turned from the old to the new? That you are in the vanguard of progress and have dispensed with the things of yesterday.

Street cars were alright in their day, but their day has passed. Their going may cut municipal revenues in lowering tax values but even this loss can be repaired. The law of compensation still holds and the general equilibrium will be maintained. Making the most of what we have will usually repair the damage of any loss. All Huntsville needs is to get the right mental attitude. She will get the right slant and consider the going of the car lines something to crow about instead of something to cry about, her troubles will vanish, pronto. The destiny of small-town car lines is to disappear. Trying to hold them is reaching for the moon."

THE "SUCKER"

There are many kinds of "suckers" in this old world of ours, suckers who fall for any sort of scheme that promises ready money, suckers that stand on the street corner and "bite" at all the old jokes of half a century ago, suckers who are eager to ride with any kind of movement just so long as it gives them a bit of prominence in the old home town.

But that isn't the kind of sucker that we are speaking of. We are speaking of the sucker who spends year in and year out within a community grasping every opportunity to gain a financial point over his neighbor, grabbing all the advantages that are prepared by his fellow-man. Riding the crest of the other man's achievement and giving nothing in return.

We not only have them in the business world—we have them in the religious world, the social world—they are a part of every existing agency and institution. They seem to grow and thrive as a bunion on the foot. There are a thousand remedies, but none of them are guaranteed to give results—you try to ostracize him and he is in the swim. You may even insult him, but he is always "on deck," in the parlance of the street, to get his share of the profits that the other fellow has made. Sucking the life blood of his community for his own personal gain, giving nothing to any cause, no matter what it may be. He goes into nothing without the assurance that his dime will be enlarged to the size of a dollar.

The Troy Messenger contributes an interesting article to the "cause" of the "sucker."

"Every community has in its midst certain citizens, who intelligent and wealthy, are able to do many great things for themselves and their section. And, there is always some who do nothing to build up the town where their ancestors made it for them, and they pass to a ripe old age and die, never being missed by the places in which they lived.

"It is pathetic to think about the man who has given over his life to the acquisition of fortune, who has made few contributions to the betterment of any cause or thing, who has niggardly watched the expenditure of a rich return. It is pitiable because the man has never learned to live. He has bound his soul by his greed for money, and he has given his life to something that avails him little when the gaunt spectre beckons him across the river."

It is pitiable to see such a man. Thinking and planning his life away that he might board wealth at the expense of his fellowmen. He certainly cannot use his wealth when he is returned to the soil from whence he came, but that doesn't seem to bother the majority of this class of suckers. We doubt if they ever give a thought to the spiritual side of life other than as a furtherance along the road to their one habit—greed.

Every city has them. Take a cause of mercy to them, do they respond? Not in one case out of ten and if they do they do not give the share that is to be expected from men of their financial rating. Try them on a civic proposition that is an aid to their city, do they respond? Not if there is a possible loop hole through which they can squirm. Any community would be better off if it were not afflicted with this type of parasite. "Take and give nothing" is their one standard. It can be

LEAGUE COMMITTEESCANS QUESTIONS OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

STOCKHOLM—Suppression of piracy and the joint exploitation of the riches of the sea are among the ten first subjects selected for study by the League of Nations committee on the Codification of International Law of which the Swedish Ex-premier Hjalmar Hammarskjöld is the president and George W. Wickersham of New York a member. This committee was appointed by the league's assembly last fall upon the motion of Baron Marks von Wurtemberg then Swedish minister of foreign affairs and delegate at Geneva.

A summary of the work so far accomplished shows that the committee has not yet taken up the proposal favored by Senator Borah to outlaw war altogether. Neither has it considered the so-called rules of warfare, regarding that subject as too big and complicated for immediate discussion, nor has it entered upon the hardly less formidable topic of the rights of neutrals in war time, which includes the freedom of the sea.

VICK'S VAPORUBAdvice to Girls

By Annie Laurie.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl still in my teens and have been "keeping company" with a young man for some time. Recently we had a little quarrel and parted. It was mostly my fault. Please tell me how I can win back his love. I would like to give a party and invite him.

What shall I do?

WAITING A.

WAITING A: If you realize that you were in the wrong it is your place to take the first step toward reconciliation, my dear. Write the young man a note explaining the situation and asking his pardon. If he is still interested in you he will be delighted to renew your friendship.

Then, if you wish you may invite him to your party. However, I suggest that you "make up" first and then extend the invitation when you know it will be accepted.

Dear Annie Laurie:

We are two young girls in our teens and are considered rather good looking and we can win and make most any boy like us for awhile, but somehow can't hold their love for long at a time. We do not believe in petting parties and spooning although we are not at all old fashioned. Please advise us how to win and hold the friendship of our friends.

Our mothers do not allow us to go out with boys alone either day or night. Is it proper for a boy to hold a girl by the arm when going down the street in day time.

The Blue Eyed Flappers

Possibly you show too little consideration for your friends at times. You should treat them courteously talk with them pleasantly and do all that you can to make them happy when they are with you if you desire to hold their friendships. My dears, it is by far best that you are termed old fashion than to indulge in petting parties. You should always be properly chaperoned. The young lady may take the gentlemen's arm when walking down the street. At street crossing or in ascending a curb the young man may assist the lady.

Dear Annie Laurie: We are two girls in our teens and are considered very good looking. We are always popular among our boy and girls friend. We have been going with two boys for a month. Lately they have not asked us for a "date." They say the reason is that they want to go car riding and our parents objects. They say they do not care to sit in the house all the time and they won't come back any more because our parents won't let us go riding.

We are very fond of them and they seem to be foolish about us when they are with us. These boys are very fast and believe in kissing and petting parties and they will not go with us unless we do these things. Lately they have broken several dates with us and it breaks our hearts. Will you please tell us what to do to make them stop this?

Two Lonesome Mammies

Your parents are certainly correct in their belief regarding the two young men that you have written to me about. It is best that you forget the young men for they are not the sort of fellows that you should marry. If they cared for you as they say they do they would certainly treat you with the respect that you are due.

Forget them and find people that are more worthwhile.

City League Race Closes This Week; Power Company Seems Assured Title

The local city league series will be brought to a close this week provided old man Weatherman provides suitable conditions at Malone Park. Tuesday afternoon the Consolidated Sunday schools will make a final effort at the Louisville and Nashville. Thursday afternoon the Decatur team battles the leading Power company entrant in the closing stanza of the summer series.

A victory for the Sunday schools and a loss by the Alabama Power company will throw the series into an extra game as the Sunday schools will be up in the running with a tie for first place. However this does not seem at all likely if the Power company can place their usual lineup on the field of battle. Decatur has shown unexpected strength at various times during the year, but the Power company seems firmly entrenched and with a crack hurler for the frays they will get away to the local title.

The success of the city league series can be accredited to the leadership of S. E. Arvidson who has worked at every turn to have the teams fulfill their engagements. The season has not been a howling success regarding the finances of the circuit and the Y. M. C. A. has been forced to foot a majority of the bills. The Y. M. C. A. has, however, given to the cities clean sport and to the players an opportunity to keep their bodies in physical trim during the long summer months when laziness is regarded as a virtue rather than a malady.

COAL PRODUCTION NEARS 1923 RECORD

(Associated Press)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 29—Alabama's coal production in 1924 came within 1,293,372 tons of the record of 1923, according to the annual report of state mine inspector Charles H. Nesbitt, which has just been completed. The report shows that the state produced 19,615,931 tons of coal in 1924. The figures given out by Mr. Nesbitt show that Jefferson county produced practically half of the entire tonnage of the state with Walker county running second with more than 25 per cent of the total output. The slight falling off in production noted is attributed to the general slackness in coal production throughout the entire country. The percentage of decrease in the Birmingham district is held to be lower than in other districts.

A considerable increase in the production of washed coal is shown in the report, 75 per cent of the entire amount produced, exclusive of lump, being in this class.

The report shows that 267 mines were active in 1924 as compared with 278 in 1923, a decrease of 91 being noted for the latter year.

Approximately 83 per cent or 16,041,447 tons of the coal produced was shot with permissible explosives, the report states, and 17 per cent, or 3,219,353 tons by black powder, the remaining 355,131 tons being strip coal which was mined without explosives.

Seventy-seven fatalities were reported, making an average of 2.77 fatalities to every 1,000 men employed at the mines. Inspections of fatal and non-fatal accidents totalled 101, the report indicates and 1,209 inspections of mines were made during the year.

The greater part of fatalities reported, it is set out, were caused by the caving in of roofs or the falling of coal at the working places. Most of these fatalities if not all, could have been prevented if employees had been more careful and had used more precaution in their work, Inspector Nesbitt states. The report further shows that there were no large fatalities.

The average of 705 tons of coal per man employed was produced during the year, the report shows, and 1924 man worked an average of 179 days.

Inspector Nesbitt gives coal production by counties as follows: Jefferson, 9,917,396; Walker, 5,679,517; Tuscaloosa, 1,144,296; Bibb, 1,009,133; Shelby, 717,891; St. Clair, 655,701; Blount, 257,312; Marion, 152,547; Winston, 20,988 and Etowah, 1,150. Total 19,615,931.

Demand For G. F. P. Is Increasing By Leaps and Bounds

Druggists Were at First Doubtful About the Unheard of Demand Which Immediately Followed Its Introduction Here

The test of time and real service shows better than theory, what can be expected of a medicine. The continued growth in the rate of G. F. P. sales is a forceful indication of the dependence which women are learning, through experience, they can place in this marvelous medicine to relieve them of pain and suffering from so-called "female troubles" and restore them to health and happiness with an abundance of energy, vitality and youthful buoyancy.

"The enthusiastic words of praise which thousands of women are now showering on G. F. P. every day," says the representative of the discoverer of this remarkable medicine, is a source of intense satisfaction to all of us.

Through the amazing discovery that catarrh of the generative organs is the dreaded malady which is responsible for 90 per cent of so-called "female disorders," such as headaches, backaches, pain in the sides, nausea, cramping dizziness, nervousness and that awful feeling of despondency and melancholy we were able to give G. F. P. powers not possessed by any other medicine. That is, ability to overcome and stamp out that dreaded malady—catarrh and to quickly build up strength, energy and vitality through stimulating and encouraging the natural functioning of all the organs of the body.

Child-birth

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers!

When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend."

Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says:

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores—everywhere.

MONTGOMER, ALA., June 30—

The membership campaign of the Alabama Farm Bureau is meeting with response from all over the state, bureau officials report. During the past week, 234 new members were signed up, making the total membership of the organization 2,300. This total membership has been gained since the first of the year.

CLIO, ALA., June 30—This town is assured of a $23,000 waterworks and sewerage system, following the passing of a measure calling for a bond issue of that amount recently. The proponents of the issue are highly elated over the solidarity of opinion as to the needs of the community along these lines as shown by the unanimous vote in favor of the bonds.

GIRARD, ALA., June 30—Improvements now under way on the waterworks of this city will provide "treated" drinking water for the citizens of the community for the first time in local history. The improvements are expected to cost in the neighborhood of $52,000.

A filtration plant, coagulating basin and a clear water reservoir on Holland creek are the main units to be added to the system. Excavation for these units has already been started and engineers state that the work should be completed within two months time.

Hail the conquering hero! the Pittsburgh Pirates are in a thirsty mood. Vanquishing the Cincinnati Reds while the Giants remain idle with weather conditions against them, the Pirates changed their boarding house. The McKelchinie tribe will now find considerable difficulty in keeping in front of the New Yorkers.

In the American circuit the world champion Senators have moved within half a game of the leading Athletics. The Senatorial fleet has gained victory in three of the four starts made against the Macks. Sam Gray, leading league hurler, was the victim of the Senatorial bats in the Monday afternoon tilt. Stan Coveleskie, former Cleveland castoff, stepped into the leading position of American league hurlers through his victory over the Macks. Coveleskie many points ahead of the veteran Johnson. Washington veteran trio Johnson, Coveleskie and Reuther offer the Senators a formidable resistance to a comeback by the Athletics that attempt to win the pennant.

A Hint for Beginners

The cross-word puzzle diagram is merely a means of concealing words which are synonymous to those listed and which will interlock perfectly and so read equally well crosswise or downwards. Always look for the number of the synonym on the diagram. If horizontal, you must find a word to fit between that number and the first shaded stop to the right; if vertical, you must fit your word between the number and the first shaded stop below.

PLANTS SHOULD GROW ONLY IN HEAT OPEN SPACES UNLESS GAS ARE PROVIDED

nce in a while when you are walking down the the residential sections of the cities, every while when you are taking a short drive in the evening and your breathing apparatus is as- h an odor that is altogether not in keeping cool night air and the cheeriness of the summer suddenly begin to wonder if in your jaunt you me a dreamer and walked past the usual beat lingering around a gas tank or a city dump, then denly come back to the reality of things, short, ter—"Cabbage." The next move is your own. of the locality, remain out of the locality, never ur dreaming to carry you into that neighborhood ge may be one of the finest of edibles when placed ooking platter with lots of fat meat, but as a ng exercise the plant is a choker. Even foul smell- ars have come to deserve the name.

weed was surely meant to be cultivated by the no owns broad acreage in the valley with his home d on the hill some 7,000 feet above the field. No how much money the plant is worth to the owner, ply in for a lot of ill feeling with the man who smell it.

age should not be planted within the cities, though may produce in great quantity and pay large divi- at the markets. Every man has the perfect right at whatever he pleases on his own plot of ground, offending other people's nostrils with offensive ng plants is certainly not in his jurisdiction. The should provide some system through which the ng of the weed in populated areas might be pro- d, else exact a total from the owner for having the cleared after the first crop is harvested. They be asked to provide suitable apparatus for others ar as they saunter past the ill smelling fields.

PRIDE SHOULD STOP THE HABIT OF UNPACKING ON THE SIDEWALKS

larger towns than our own there are laws prohibi- ne receiving and unpacking of large shipments of on the pavements or streets in the front of the ess establishment. We do not feel that such law ment within our own municipalities is needed for elieve that our merchants after a little considera- of the matter will reason that the practice is a ee rather than an advertisement that they have d new goods and take this means for catching the eye. Neither is it to be regarded as a convenience y merchant in the more adequate handling of his t purchases.

r instance, consider the pedestrian walking comfort- down the street, if he is dressed in a summer suit of y material, suddenly being halted and made to choose wn way. He has the alternative of going into the le of the street and taking his chances with motor elled vehicles, or he may dive headlong into the piles bris and come out full of excelsior, pasteboard boxes, and whatnot.

consider the lady who desires to do a bit of window pping before deciding upon her purchases. She can- even get a look at the windows no matter how much e and money that the merchant has spent in dressing o suit the most fastidious taste. As a result she go to the window across the street, down in the next ck, she is unable to select from the window that has debris piled in front, she simply cannot reach it. is a last argument in favor of the back door or alley- y entrance, we should think of the unsightliness addi d the streets of the cities. As a matter of civic pride we uld not allow the principal thoroughfares to be littered n the trash from unpacking great boxes. The trash y remain for some days in the streets of the city and me a breeder for disease carriers thereby injuring health of the communities.

Ve do not offer this suggestion to the merchants of cities in a critical mood, we only ask that they stop consider the matter. Then if they continue to un- k on the main streets we shall feel that we have los' argument and the merchant is sincere in his convic- n that the practice is of more good than harm.

SCOPES BEGINNING AND END COMES JULY 10; DAYTON WILL GRAB THE BENEFITS

William T. Scopes, the bespeckled and spectacled Ken- ky grammar school teacher, will have his beginning d his end when the monkey trial opens at Dayton, nn., on July 10. Dayton will be there on hand to grasp fruits of Mr. Scopes' labors.

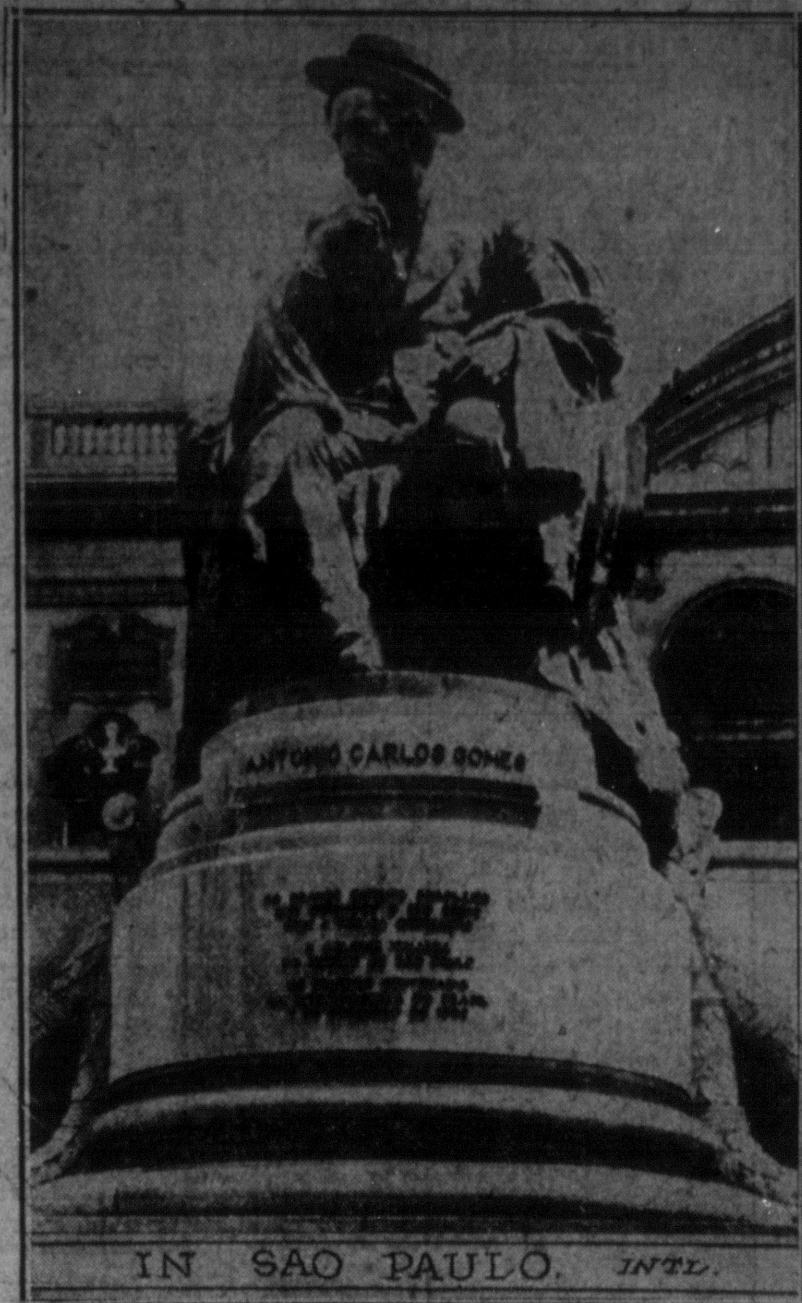

William Scopes has been made the goat of an absolute plicity and advertising scheme of the little hamlet of yton. That little town is going to benefit—may even d some of the growth that will be there during the ation of the Scopes trial. All Scopes is going to have, of the debate that in the final analysis will mean hing, is an unpleasant reflection in the years to come the great amount of notoriety that he has had very le to do with.

Ten days before the trial opens and the goat of the nkey fight is seeking his homestead in Kentucky, glad- accepting the seclusion that he once no doubt, wished escape. Dayton, in the meantime, is preparing for t era of all eras, that period of great rejoicing, that e of reaping the golden harvest. When it is all over d the human tide has receded from the little mountain n, the villagers will gather at the famous drug store, perhaps in the general merchandise store that houses postoffice and tell of the time that Clarence Darrow d Bill Bryan called each other names and shook their s. Scopes will be more than pleased to forget the ode in his life.

With the beginning of the evolution trial July 10, the ire United States, possibly the entire world will be king of the theory and the contradiction of the Bible. en the trial is brought to a close the world will still talking about evolution and the contradiction of the le. We doubt if the world will be enlightened with display of intelligence from either Mr. Darrow or Bryan.

Dayton will gather the benefit that is to be showered this occasion. Stock worn shelves of goods will be ned, the village widow will raise the money for the rtgage—there might be some village romances, but for William T. Scopes. He is the goat of the affair d will remain so for

Advice to Girls
—By Annie Laurie—

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl seventeen years of age. There is a young man who loves me dearly, and who left the city a few weeks ago. I do not love him. He wrote to me and asked me to write him. I haven't answered him yet. Do you think it is right for me to write him?
SYLVIA.

SYLVIA: There is no reason why you should not write this young man just because you do not love him, Sylvia. If you are interested in him, if you have tastes and interests in common, then don't hesitate to correspond. But if, on the other hand, you really are not interested in this young man, merely ignore his letters or drop him a note saying you are too busy to correspond.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
My friend says that when a young lady and man are walking together the lady is on the left side of the man. Is she right?
IN DOUBT.

IN DOUBT: The gentleman always walks on the side of the street nearest the curb. However, going to to dinner, the gentleman offers the lady his left arm, and in automobiles the lady always sits on the right of the gentleman.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry or subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

The Lawrence county board of education met in special session Tuesday with a full attendance of members; numerous items of a routine nature were transacted and hearings given to matters postponed at the last regular meeting in May among them the decision as to consolidation of the Hillsboro and the College Grove school. Due to the bad road conditions in and around the College Grove school it was thought best to retain the school for the first six grades and allow the upper grades from the district to attend the Hillsboro school along with any children of the lower grades that can do so. Hillsboro having regularly an eight or a nine month term offers advantages to the children that cannot be offered in the smaller school.

When completed the words should interlock perfectly.

PROTECTION for 60,000 Employees

The management of this railroad has just made it possible for every employee, male or female, white or colored, to insure his or her peace of mind through the protection afforded by life insurance and substantial remuneration in case of fatal or serious injury.

Through the largest single insurance transaction in the history of underwriting, representing a policy of approximately $150,000,000 in the Prudential Insurance Co., both accident and life insurance are provided to every Louisville & Nashville employe, at a fraction of the normal cost—the railroad assuming a substantial difference in premiums between those paid by employees and those paid to the insurance company.

The management believes that this protection to the "L. & N. family" will make for more efficient service to the public.

Power Company Has City Title Cinched; Walter Johnson Hurls In Old-time Form

The Alabama Power company is being proclaimed today as the winner of the local city league series following the loss of the Sunday Schools to the Louisville and Nashville shopmen yesterday afternoon at Malone Park in a batting spree that ended 14-10. A loss by the Power company to Decatur on Thursday will not effect the league leadership.

In the Sunday school-L. & N. game yesterday afternoon the Sunday school outfit started with some thumping of their own and looked well on the way to victory when the Shopmen began pushing base hits past Wright and piled up a lead in the fourth and fifth that the Consolidated team was unable to match.

B. Slaten started on the hill for the Louisville and Nashville entry but later gave way to Myers who held the Sunday schools in check from the fourth inning to the last.

The score by innings:
Sunday Schools.....113 050 000—10
L. & N.....001 542 20x—14
Batteries: Wright and Howell; B. Slaten, Myers and D. Slayton.

The veteran Walter Johnson put the Senators into first place yesterday in hurling a two hit affair against the Athletics. The Senators gathered their fourth verdict out of five straight against the Macks by a 7-0 score. Johnson did not allow a man to get past second base and broke Lamar's hitting streak for consecutive games that had run to 29. Johnson was probably never in better form during his entire major league career and toyed with the Mackmen through the hot afternoon. The victory placed the Senators a half a game in the lead.

FRIDAY'S GAME

The Louisville & Nashville will play Decatur Friday afternoon at Malone Park. The match will be postponed on account of the condition of the diamond.

Alleys will be open for general practice tonight. Tomorrow night the leaders will bowl the Rattlers.

Everybody Worked But Father

"Father's stomach trouble seemed to be getting worse all the time and finally he had to quit work altogether. Two brothers and myself gave up school and went to work to support the family. Father had lost sixty pounds in weight and was yellow as saffron and no medicine helped him. Telling a friend about it six months ago, she advised taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I got a bottle and it helped father at once. He was able to go back to work a month later, has regained his weight and strength and eats like a wood-chopper." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.—At all druggists. Adv.
